

It's just an inspiring building and you just can't help but just fall in love with it.

The building has a lot of potential as a museum, and it can teach a lot of people. And before I joined the Civic Trust I didn't know they existed. There's some old buildings that I didn't even know about.

Every element of Gloucester's story for the last fifteen hundred years is told in this building.

So from the Siege of Gloucester, this building was here for the siege, during pin manufacturing, this building was here.

It's seen every single part. And it's had so many different industries in this building, that this is a microcosm of what Gloucester is and what Gloucester will be.

I think this space is haunted to be honest.

Marc & Alex Waters, The Folk of Gloucester

The Folk

Historic England

Gloucester
History Festival